COURSE DESCRIPTION AND EXPECTATIONS:

IMM1075H is a mandatory course for all MSc students in the department of Immunology.

The course is delivered via small discussion-based groups, and each student must attend 3 sessions throughout the year (this number includes the session in which they present)

Fundamental Immunology students in the 2nd year of their MSc studies will present / lead one session during the year. With the permission of their supervisor, the presenting student will show data from their research that has not yet been presented in any other venue other than their own lab meetings. Discussion will then take place about the presented data.

Classes will take place in MSB 2278 at 6pm.

Students must also complete the graduate professional development module as part of IMM2075 during their third year.

COURSE NOTES:

- Cell phones are not permitted in class. Please ensure they are turned to silent and put away
- Presentations MUST NOT contain more than 2 intro slides
- One (1) week prior to their presentation date, the presenters must post to the course Quercus discussion forum a one-page summary of their upcoming presentation
 - each attendee must then post a question or response to the presenter's original post
 - failure to post the summary and/or make a comment on the posting may result in an unsatisfactory grade

PRESENTATION DATES & SWITCHES

- Students may switch their attendance date with another student provided both have agreed. This switch can be done online at: https://adjuvant.utoronto.ca/immtonight/2018_switch
- Presenters cannot use the self-serve option and must email the instructors (see above) and graduate.immunology@utoronto.ca for permission to switch

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY:

Academic integrity is fundamental to learning and scholarship at the University of Toronto. Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in this academic community ensures that the U of T degree that you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement, and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves.

Familiarize yourself with the policies and guidelines listed in the School of Graduate Studies Policies and Guidelines website (<http://www.sgs.utoronto.ca/facultyandstaff/Pages/Policies-and-Guidelines.aspx>) and the University of Toronto's Code of Behaviour on Academic Matters (<http://www.governingcouncil.utoronto.ca/policies/behaveac.htm>). This code is the rulebook for academic behaviour at the U of T, and you are expected to know the rules. Potential offences include, but are not limited to:

In papers and assignments:

- Using someone else's ideas or words without appropriate acknowledgement.
- Copying material word-for-word from a source (including lecture and study group notes) and not placing the words within quotation marks.
- Submitting your own work in more than one course without the permission of the instructor.
- Making up sources or facts.
- Including references to sources that you did not use.
- Obtaining or providing unauthorized assistance on any assignment including
 - working in groups on assignments that are supposed to be individual work,
 - having someone rewrite or add material to your work while "editing".
- Lending your work to a classmate who submits it as his/her own without your permission.

On tests and exams:

- Using or possessing any unauthorized aid, including a cell phone.
- Looking at someone else's answers
- Letting someone else look at your answers.
- Misrepresenting your identity.
- Submitting an altered test for re-grading.

Misrepresentation:

- Falsifying or altering any documentation required by the University, including doctor's notes.
- Falsifying institutional documents or grades.

The University of Toronto treats cases of academic misconduct very seriously. All suspected cases of academic dishonesty will be investigated following the procedures outlined in the Code. The consequences for academic misconduct can be severe, including a failure in the course and a notation on your transcript. If you have any questions about what is or is not permitted in this course, please do not hesitate to contact your instructor. If you have questions about appropriate research and citation methods, seek out additional information from your instructor, or from other available campus resources like the U of T Writing Website (<http://www.writing.utoronto.ca>). If you are experiencing personal challenges that are having an impact on your academic work, please speak to your instructor or seek the advice of the School of Graduate Studies.
